SUMMARY OF RESEARCH EXPERTISE

Dr. Peters is a labor economist and demographer with over 30 years of experience in social and family policy related research. Her work focuses on family and social investments in children/youth, the impacts of public policies on child/youth outcomes, family risk factors, father involvement, and work/family interactions. Her research has been widely published in journals of economics, demography, and sociology. She is co-editor of several books including Marriage and Family: Perspectives and Complexities, published by Columbia University Press in 2009 and Fatherhood: Research Interventions and Policies, published by Haworth Press in 2000. Peters is currently co-PI on a project exploring promising practices for involving fathers in home visiting programs. For over ten years Peters was a partner in the NICHD funded Family and Child Well-being Network. She directed the Network's fatherhood efforts, and she was a member of the steering committee which guided the Federal Interagency Forum on Child and Family Statistics' Nurturing Fatherhood initiative. She recently completed an NICHD Program Project Grant on the Transition to Fatherhood, a collaborative project across four research institutions analyzing the timing, circumstances, and consequences of the transition to fatherhood.
